

Metric Entropy, Approximation Numbers and Gaussian Processes

We start with covering numbers of compact sets in function spaces. Then, for a compact operator, we introduce various approximation numbers which measure the degree of compactness. Connections and interplay with Gaussian processes will be surveyed including two well-known conjectures. The integration operator (associated with Brownian motion) serves as the main example throughout the talk.